

Promoting Dialogue With Students

The Forum is proud to announce a new strategic partnership with Abroad View Magazine, the leading publication for student writing and expressions about education abroad. The Forum will be represented on the Abroad View editorial board and Board of Directors, and Forum members will receive complimentary subscriptions to the publication, distributed twice each year in the fall and spring.

“Our organization values collaboration, such as our relationship with Frontiers, the leading academic journal for study abroad,” says Mary Dwyer, Chair of the Forum Board. “This new partnership will forge a dynamic dialogue between study abroad professionals and the students we serve.”

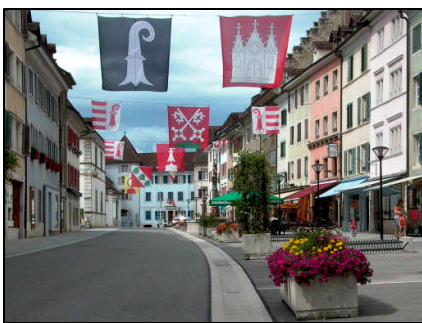

“By helping to communicate the needs and interests of each group to the other, Abroad View and the Forum will have a greater opportunity to fulfill our missions. We are honored to be a part of the Forum and invite its members to help us provide a voice for education abroad students,” says Sherry Schwarz, Editor-in-Chief and Publisher of Abroad View.

CEO Named to Diversity Council

Brian Whalen, President and CEO, has been named to IIE’s Council for Increasing Diversity in Education Abroad (IDEA Council), which will advise IIE on how to increase the participation in its programs of students of color, those with financial need, and other underrepresented groups. Drawn from educational institutions and nonprofit organizations across the country, members include:

- Carole Artigiani of Global Kids
- Ambassador Charles Baquet, III of Xavier University
- John Covington of the Pueblo, Colorado School District 60
- Margery Ganz of Spelman College
- José Mercadé of Glendale Community College

Heading to Basel?

Look for Brian Whalen and Bill Anthony, of Northwestern University, who will be representing the Forum at the European Association of International Education (EAIE) Conference in Basel, Switzerland next month. The Forum will have two Networking Poster Presentations: one on Thursday, September 14 from 4 to 5:15pm and the second on Friday, September 15 from 10 to 11:15am. Stop by and hear about the Standards Pilot Project, the Austin conference, the benefits of joining the Forum, and sponsorship and advertising opportunities.
